

GETTYSBURGIAN DIES OF INJURY IN AUTO CRASH

J. J. Morgan, North Stratton Street, Succumbs, Following Automobile Accident.

J. J. Morgan, 28, a salesman, who for the last ten days lived at 221 North Stratton street, and Miss Mary Albright, 18, of Kinderhook, Lancaster county, are dead as the result of the collision of a coupe and a motor truck on the Lincoln Highway, near Wrightsville, early Saturday morning.

Besides the dead, William Ogle, 26, colored, is in the York Hospital with a fracture of the left leg, a cut above the right eye, bruises on the mouth and minus several teeth; Mrs. Captolia Davis, colored, York, and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey W. McCabe, Philadelphia, are nursing minor bruises, as a result of the same smash-up.

Miss Albright and Morgan died at the Columbia Hospital, the former at 3 o'clock, Saturday morning, and the latter at 4:30 o'clock, Saturday afternoon. Both were admitted to the institution at 2:15 o'clock Saturday morning, immediately following the accident.

Fractured Skull

The girl suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries, while Morgan's neck was broken, his skull fractured, shoulder dislocated, left arm fractured and he also suffered a number of cuts and bruises.

At the direction of District Attorney W. W. Van Baman, of York county, a thorough investigation of the accident is being made. A coroner's inquest was held Sunday.

The body of Morgan, about whom there is little known here, except that he was a salesman, and apparently had no fixed place of residence, was claimed by a man by the name of S. Herman, who said he was a step-brother. He directed that the body be sent to Jacob Malt, Edwardsville, Luzerne county. Morgan's father is reported to live in Wilkes-Barre.

On Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. McCabe, who were on their honeymoon, were only slightly injured and after receiving treatment at the Columbia Hospital proceeded to Hanover, with the intention of going to Altoona.

Their automobile was wrecked and they were forced to continue their trip by train. Mr. McCabe was cut on the hands and arms and Mrs. McCabe suffered a scalp injury and cuts on the hands.

The truck which figured in the collision is the property of the Keystone Tractor and Implement company, York. It was parked at the rear of the City market house, York, and Ogle admits that it was "borrowed" to take the ride, Mrs. Davis, Miss Albright, Morgan and Ogle being the occupants.

Mrs. Davis, when in Atlantic City, where she is employed, resides at 34 North Ohio avenue. She works at 138 South Maryland avenue.

Story of The Accident

William Ogle, colored, in company with Captolia Davis, colored, Mary Albright and Joseph Morgan, whites, was driving a Ford car with a truck body toward Wrightsville at a speed he says of about 30 miles an hour. He had just passed the brow of the hill at the lane leading from the home of Frank Zercher in front of the home of Amos Strickler's residence when he encountered a stalled car ahead of him. The driver of this car was having some trouble and was moving only slowly if at all. Ogle swung his machine quickly to the left and as he did so a Ford coupe in which were riding Mr. and Mrs. McCabe, of Philadelphia, on the right side of the road was moving at moderate speed toward York. The two cars came together head on with a crash, the noise of which awakened all of the people in the three houses at that point.

The Stricklers and the Zerchers and others nearby dressed quickly and went to the assistance of the injured as did the men in the car around which Ogle attempted to pass.

The stalled car, it has been ascertained, was in charge of Frank Doherty, Bayonne, N. J., and E. P. Harrison, of New York City. They will be subpoenaed to appear at the coroner's hearing. Both were treated for minor injuries at the Columbia Hospital.

Ogle Interviewed

District Attorney Van Baman and Detective Ralph Keech interviewed Ogle at the hospital. He said that he met his white companion, whom he did not know by name, but who is said to be Morgan, at a cigar store. Ogle claims he did not know that the machine was stolen when his companions asked him to do the driving.

Washington Woman In Local Hospital

Mrs. W. J. Greevy, of Washington, D. C., is in the Warner Hospital, suffering injuries to her back as the result of an automobile accident at the Peach Orchard, on the battlefield, Sunday. The car in which Mrs. Greevy was a passenger is said to have become unmanageable when the steering gear locked, and it ran into an obstruction. The accident occurred at noon, and Mrs. Greevy was admitted to the hospital at 12:30 o'clock. Her condition is said not to be serious.

MAJOR PARTIES SHOW INTEREST

As Election Day Draws Near, Political Factions Begin To Display Added Enthusiasm.

As the date for the general election, November 4, draws nearer, greater activity is cited among the two major political parties in Adams county. And both apparently are taking the same method of reaching and interesting their followers.

On Tuesday evening, October 28, the Democrats will hold an ox roast on the lot of Harry Bumbaugh, Buford avenue, to be followed by a mass meeting at the court house at which candidates will be present to address the gathering.

Republican men and women of the county will be tendered a pig roast on Saturday evening, November 1, at the Order of Independent Americans lodge rooms, Baltimore street. Candidates and other speakers will be present to address the diners.

The League of Women Voters, a non-partisan organization, with a branch in Adams county, is also busy endeavoring to arouse enthusiasm among voters of all political parties. Their slogan is "We don't care for whom you vote, just so you vote."

Plan Reception

The Adams County branch of the League of Women Voters has completed plans for the reception and meeting of the Get-out-the-vote caravan, which is scheduled to come through Gettysburg Saturday afternoon, October 25.

The League of Women Voters in this county will meet the caravan at the Adams-Franklin line and escort the party to Center Square where a meeting is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

The next meeting of the Adams county branch of the League was announced this morning by Miss Edna Eicholtz, chairman, for Monday evening, October 27, at the court house, beginning at 8 o'clock. At that time discussion on the voting for the proposed constitutional convention will be held. Officers of the organization are urging all members to be present.

TRANSFER UNIT TO GETTYSBURG

Motor Repair Section No. 105 Is Transferred From Harrisburg by Order of National Guard.

Motor Repair Section No. 105, formerly located at Harrisburg, will be removed to Gettysburg, according to information received this morning by Lieutenant William H. Armor, commanding the unit.

Lieutenant Armor was informed by telegram this morning that the Pennsylvania National Guard officials had approved of the proposal of removing the unit to Gettysburg and that actual transfer will be culminated within the next ten days. Lieutenant Armor remains in full command.

The local commander immediately issued a call for eighteen volunteers for the repair unit. Headquarters will be located in the new Weaver building, recently erected in the rear of the G. W. Weaver & Son department store.

3 Gettysburgians

Three members of the unit are Gettysburgians, Frank Stokes, Wilbur Geiselman and Donald Lauver. It is the desire of Lieutenant Armor to have the entire roster of the Motor Repair Section composed of Gettysburg men and his call for volunteers is expected to be answered by enough young men of town to replete the diminished ranks, caused by the transfer of the unit from Harrisburg to Gettysburg.

This is the first time that a National Guard unit has been established at Gettysburg and is the fulfillment of a long cherished ambition of Lieutenant Armor to have the Repair unit located here. It was through his influence together with the cooperation of some representative Gettysburg business men that the outfit was transferred here.

Is Spanish Royalty Doomed to Be Exiled?

KING ALFONSO XIII, GEN. DE RIVERA, PRINCE D'ASTURIAS, VINCENTE D'IBANEZ (Below) QUEEN VICTORIA & PRINCESSES BEATRICE & CHRISTINE

The resentment that has sprung up in Spain over losses in the long-continued war with the Riff tribes for possession of Morocco and also over the acts of the Spanish Dictator, General Primo Rivera, has been crystallized by Vicente Blasco Ibanez, world-renowned Spanish author of the "Four Horsemen," "Blood and Sand" and other novels. Ibanez has placed himself at the head of a party which declares it will never rest until Alfonso and his English queen, Victoria, have been driven from the throne and a republic established. The Prince d'Asturias is the heir to the Spanish throne. His two beautiful sisters are also pictured here.

HIGH GRIDDERS GUESTS AT PLAY

Owl and Nightingale Club to Entertain Local Football Players at Initial Performance.

Coaches Walter D. Reynolds and Frederick P. Haehlen and the twenty men that comprise the first squad of the Gettysburg High School football team will be guests of the Owl and Nightingale Dramatic Club of Gettysburg college at their first show this season at the Lincoln Way Theatre Wednesday, October 29th, when they will present Rex Beach's famous four act farce "Going Some."

The High School gladiators will see former famed High School mokeskin heroes performed in the persons of "Bucky" Armor, 1920 Maroon and "White star quarterback; "Ducky" Armor, captain, full-back and hero of the 1919 champion High School team; "Pete" Peters, one of the best tackles that ever donned a Maroon jersey, and "Juney" Bream, former star center of the 1921 and 1922 teams.

Besides these former football stars Misses Ida Hartley and Madylin R. Roth, graduates of Gettysburg High in 1922 and 1921, respectively, and Miss Anne Baker of Abbotstown will be among the local people in the cast.

The chart for the performance will open Wednesday at noon at Keet's Dug Store on Chambersburg street.

The reaction of Gettysburgians to the opportunity of attending the play "Going Some" in the Lincoln Way Theatre has been entirely favorable and the fact that the college dramatic society is catering to Gettysburg play-lovers has provoked much favorable comment. Indications point to a capacity audience.

It is new in the annals of the Owl and Nightingale Dramatic Club that (Continued on Third Page)

HARTMAN READS BIBLE IN JAIL

Prisoner Is Presented With Bible by Rev. Harry Daniels; Is Visited by His Brother.

With a Bible in his hands, presented him by the Rev. Harry Daniels, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Philip R. Hartman, self-confessed slayer of Private Francis L. Haley, State Trooper, sat on an old wooden bench in the corridor of the local jail Sunday morning and listened intently to services conducted there.

With the exception of church services, which he was permitted to attend, Hartman's first Sunday in the Adams county jail was spent in the same manner as he spent his first two days. He remained in his cell, to which he is confined, reading the Bible given him by the local pastor, smoked an occasional cigarette, paced the floor of his small cell and remained calm throughout the day.

He ate sparingly of his breakfast consisting of hot cakes, syrup, bread, butter and coffee and expressed satisfaction. His appetite for dinner was stouter and he ate vegetable soup, beef, potatoes, gravy, bread and butter and water, while his evening meal consisted of cold meat, soup, coffee and bread.

Visited By Brother

Hartman's second visitor since his incarceration in the local jail was his brother, who called on him last evening. The two men conversed for fifteen minutes, the one expressing regret over his wrong deed, the other silent most of the time, listening to the story retold again of his escape.

When Hartman's brother left, the prisoner renewed his reading of the Bible, in which he has taken a profound interest.

Occasionally some of the other 24 prisoners confined in the local jail converse with him through his cell-door window, but for the most part the prisoner devotes his time to reading the Bible and smoking.

It was recalled by a local physician that Hartman's child was born in the local hospital eight months ago. The couple was residing near Aspers at the time and appeared very devoted to each other. They displayed more than the usual interest in their new born babe, said the attending physician, and were anxious as to the proper care of the child.

JAIL BREAKERS BACK AFTER DASH

Lancaster County Convicts Caught After 24 Hours Of Liberty.

(By Associated Press.)

Lancaster, Oct. 20.—After 24 hours liberty, Clark Herman and Edmund Cote, who escaped Saturday night from the Lancaster county jail, were again in their cells today. They were captured last night at Mechanics Grove in the lower end of the county near the Maryland line. Neither offered resistance when cornered by Lancaster police who headed a posse which had surrounded a stretch of woods where they were hiding.

In making their break for liberty the convicts shot and seriously wounded James Messenkov, a guard, stole his keys to the automobile gate and walked unobserved through the jail park. Reaching the Lincoln Highway the fugitives held up a motorist, commandeered his machine and attempted to take his clothing. They were frightened away by other automobilists before they obtained their victim's clothing and later abandoned the car and took to the woods. Herman was serving from 6 to 40 years for highway robbery while Cote was serving two and one-half years for stealing a car. Both had figured in a previous jail delivery, but were captured on the outskirts of the city while waiting to board a freight train.

Messenkov is in a critical condition. He has a bullet wound above the heart and another in the neck.

WAR'S SERIOUS AFTERMATH

London.—Two "personals" appearing in the London Times tell their own story. The first, which reflects the social and economic changes wrought by the war, follows:

"Peer wants work; under 40; energetic, resourceful; horses, motors, literature; served in Royal Air Force."

The other shows the die hard spirit, the spirit that's out to maintain the old social standards at all hazards. Here it is:

"There is now a vacancy (first class) for Lady Inebriate in Home at—. Apply etc."

The plain inference of this laconic message is that at this particular home there is no welcome for a female inebriate who is not a lady.

YOUNG CONVICT LEAVES PRISON; IS DAD OF THREE

(By Associated Press.)

Mesquite Texas, Oct. 20.—Robert Hall, 21, sentenced to a long prison term for murder last week, was expected to leave the state prison under parole and, unguarded, return to his home, his wife and three children, one of the latter dead, here today. The parole was granted over the telephone last night by the acting Governor.

Triplets were born to Mrs. Hall Saturday. One died last night. The other two infants and the mother were reported as "doing fine" but Mrs. Hall is penniless.

Hall was convicted of killing a boy last December, when a party of youngsters "tick-tacked" Hall's home. Hall fired into the party with a shot-gun.

BRITAIN WANTS SAINT'S BONES

Skeleton of St. Patrick Is Believed Found in Pembroke-shire, Far From Reptilian Labors.

London.—The skeleton of St. Patrick is believed by some to have been found in Pembroke-shire, far from the scenes of his reptilian labors. The search for the body of the saint was started several months ago in the churchyard of St. David's Cathedral, among the ruins of St. Patrick's Chapel, a part of an older church. The chapel floor was found ten feet under the earth, and all the walls eventually uncovered. At the east end of the ruins was an altar, and in front of this was found a skeleton.

The excavators, believing the body that of the saint, sent for the Dean of the Chapter, who had it removed to a place of honor in the cathedral. Here it will remain pending the establishment of its identity.

The skeleton was in a perfect state of preservation, except that some damage had been done to the skull, probably by a falling stone.

The discovery so far has produced no comment from the land of the saint's labors, but it is expected that efforts will be made to have the body taken there should the experts decide the remains are genuine.

TOWN TURNS OUT TO WELCOME HERO

Coffeerville, Kansas, Stores Close As Village Honors Walter Johnson.

(By Associated Press.)

Coffeerville, Kansas, Oct. 20.—In gala attire Coffeerville today honored Walter Johnson, pitcher for the Washington world champions, upon his return home.

Each year for many seasons Johnson's homecoming has been made a holiday. When it became apparent that Walter was to figure in the world series this year, plans were made to make his 1924 homecoming the biggest of the entire eighteen Walter Johnson days which Coffeerville has observed.

Every store is closed and on each door is a card announcing:

"This store is closed in honor of Walter Johnson Day." The entire town was bedecked in flags and the school children were given a day off.

London.—Parrots are replacing pet Pekingese dogs in the affections of some society people. In Hyde Park recently several women had green parrots with them in their motorcars. Many people have been seen walking with parrots on their shoulders, or with the birds sitting beside them on public seats. West End stores report an increasing demand for parrots as pets.

INLAND FISHING ENRICHES INDIANS

Red Lake Indians Gather 750,000 Pounds of Fish From Red Lake in Gopher State.

Red Lake Falls, Minn.—Red Lake Indians, the model Chippewa band of Minnesota, gathered this summer 750,000 pounds of fish from Red Lake, it was announced by H. B. Dooley, superintendent of the Red Lake reservation.

During the last seven years the Indians, under a contract with the state of Minnesota, have received more than $500,000 for fish taken from the lake. The fishing season lasts but three months during the summer, but last summer four Indians, with the help of their squaws, earned $1,000 each and one pair of fishermen, buck and squaw, cleared $1,500.

This work at fishing, in addition to the rich timber tracts on the reservation, enables the Red Lake Indians to live comfortably and to educate their children. When the Senate Indian Affairs sub-committee visited the Red Lake reservation for one of a series of hearings among the Minnesota Chippewas, the members found a well-dressed, prosperous and contented band of Indians. Under their contract with the state the Red Lake Indians, comprising about 17,000 men, women and children, have exclusive commercial fishing privileges on the lake, but they must sell all their catch to the state which has a packing plant there.

Wall-eyed pike, considered to be the best selling fish on the market, comprises about 85 per cent of the annual catch with the rest of the motley assortment including whitefish, pickerel, perch, sheepsheads, gold eyes, carp, buffalo and bullheads.

To avoid catching the smaller fish, the Indians are compelled to use nets with apertures at least two inches square. Some of the Indians use birch bark canoes, which they make themselves, and others use small motorboats.

Famous London Buildings Succumb To Damp Weather

London.—London fogs are responsible for the crumbling of the walls of the houses of Parliament, not the ravages of time as had been generally supposed. The material in these buildings, which has been a great disappointment from the standpoint of wear, is magnesian limestone. It was selected in the belief that it would withstand well both the action of the fogs and the passage of the years. Parliament will be asked for money to make repairs.

Pinchot Approves Prison Removal

(By Associated Press.)

Harrisburg, Oct. 20.—Recommendation by the board of trustees of the Eastern Prison that the institution be removed from Philadelphia into the country was endorsed today by Governor Pinchot. Commenting upon the report the Governor said: "The report on the Eastern Prison shows what a clean and high minded management, free from politics, can do for an institution that gang-politics had converted into a thorough-going disgrace to the commonwealth."

"The Eastern penitentiary is out of the mud. There is still much to be done for it, but the first big step has been taken. The rest will follow. I am strong for its removal into the country."

INSECT PEST IS DESTROYING CROP

Pumpkin Crop on H. M. Trostle Farm Is Ruined When New Pest Visits Field; Is Unknown.

From the farm of H. M. Trostle, adjoining Hammers' Hall, comes the report of an insect pest which literally destroyed the pumpkin crop on that farm. Mr. Trostle, who with a number of employees went into a corn field last week to cut corn for a silo, also looked over his pumpkin crop.

He found black, elongated bugs covering most of the pumpkins in a large field. The insects seemed to perforate the shell of the vegetable, causing it to dry up and rot. Scarcely a pumpkin in the field escaped the pest, according to reports.

A number of specimens of the insect were given to R. E. Underwood, county agent, Saturday, and he is expected to announce a formula for combating the pest within a few days.

FARM CALENDAR

A Gardener's Trick.—A lettuce grower near Philadelphia has been able to secure a much earlier spring crop by plowing a field into broad ridges in the fall and in late March or early April he sets lettuce plants from frames on the ridges. The ridges are dry enough for planting some time ahead of the surrounding land. The plants are protected from severe weather immediately after planting by a light mulch of marsh hay.

The Lawn.—If grass seeding has not been done to this time, wheat or rye should be sown for turning under next spring as a green manure crop. If the soil needs both manure and lime, well rotted manure should be worked into the soil this fall and lime, preferably ground limestone, applied in the spring.

Destroy Mummied Fruit.—After the fruit crop is harvested it is a good plan in the prevention of disease spreading to destroy all dried-up and rotting fruit that still clings to the trees or is on the ground. Brown and black rot spreads rapidly in the spring even from one diseased apple, plum or peach left in the orchard.

Commercial Fruit Growing.—A new home study course called "Commercial Fruit Growing" has just been finished by Dr. S. W. Fletcher, head of the horticulture department of the Pennsylvania State College. It is in seven lessons and is offered free for study by correspondence. It takes in all important phases of this industry. A post card to the Agricultural Correspondence Course Department at State College, Pa., will bring a copy of the home study course catalog describing this and many other farm and home courses.

CARLISLE HOLDS OLD HOME WEEK

Unusual Attractions Booked For Celebration at Carlisle; Monster Searchlight Attracts Attention.

Carlisle's Old Home Week, which started Sunday afternoon with services on Biddle Field, was very much like a tremendous county fair spread over the town itself instead of being confined to one fairground plot. A military parade and elaborate parades all through the week take the place of the horse races, but there will be a monster midway rivaling the biggest fairs, and all of the high points of a big show, from airplane flights to an agricultural show in the market house.

The celebration started with a bang at 12:05 a. m. after Sunday midnight, when a billion candle power army searchlight picked out an aerial bomb, which exploded, dropping the National flag. A pajama parade followed.

Week's Program

The following is the general week's program:
Monday, October 20, 12:05 a. m., formal opening parade; 1:30 p. m., military parade; 2:30 p. m., military parade; 4:00 p. m., midway opens; 11:00 p. m., closing popularity contest.

Tuesday, October 21, Molly Pitcher Day; 2:30 p. m., patriotic meeting.

Wednesday, October 22, 1:30 p. m., civic parade, including Bel-Mas-Kar, Mummies' carnival parade, all welcome; 3:30 p. m., army football; 8:00 p. m., opening farm products and special shows.

Thursday, October 23, 2:00 p. m., firemen's parade; 4:30 p. m., all-star boxing show.

Friday, October 24, farmer's day, political speeches; 2:30 p. m., baby parade; 7:30 p. m., big feature of Old Home Week—Clavilux color and light concert.

Saturday, October 25, 1:30 p. m., college and schools' parade; 2:30 p. m., football, Dickinson-Albright.

Army demonstrations will be given for visitors each day at the Army Medical Field Service School from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Band concerts and special features will be announced daily on public square.

OLD CLERGYMAN STILL ENJOYS PIPE

Pontypool, Wales.—Rev. Christopher Cook, rector of Mamhilad, the oldest beneficed clergyman in the United Kingdom and in all probability the oldest active clergyman in the world, will shortly celebrate his 100th birthday.

Mr. Cook was born in September, 1824, and has held the living at Mamhilad for 72 years. He has a son, 75 years old, who is vicar of Rowelstone, Llansillo. His father served as a naval surgeon in the Battle of Trafalgar, and died at a great age. The centenarian clergyman has not preached for some years, but he is diligent and regular in his attendance at the services of the church. He is surprisingly vigorous, enjoys his pipe and takes an active interest in his garden, where he has spent much time the past season.

VIENNA DIVORCES ARE USELESS, DUE TO FLAT SHORTAGE

Vienna.—Vienna still struggles with problems arising from housing shortage, and every now and then some new phase of the situation draws public attention.

Just now it is the question of accommodations for divorced persons. Apartments are so scarce that in a great many cases divorced couples are compelled to go on living under the same roof. A man in such circumstances recently went to court to compel his former wife to move away as he wanted to marry again. The judge ruled she should go.

NEW $30,000,000 MORTGAGE HERE

Is On Property Of Northern Central Railroad, Branch and Subsidiary of Pennsylvania.

A mortgage for $3,000,000, one of the largest ever presented at the office of the register and recorder here, is now being put on record.

The mortgage is on the property of the Northern Central railroad, a branch and subsidiary of the Pennsylvania system, and because some of the property of the company is in Adams county—the York-Frederick division—the mortgage must be recorded here.

The Fidelity Trust Company, of Philadelphia, is holder of the mortgage. Bonds will be issued to be known as "General and Refunding Mortgage Gold Bonds," the aggregate value of which shall not exceed $30,000,000. Already $8,000,000 of the issue has been marketed and Federal revenue stamps have been issued to the amount of more than $4,000.

The bonds are being issued to the Pennsylvania railroad company by the Northern Central company in liquidation of indebtedness of the latter for improvements made or to be made by it by the parent railroad system.

Work of recording the mortgage from a copy of the original to the register and recorder is in itself a task of no small proportions. There are 77 printed pages in the manuscript and it is estimated that four or five days will be required to transcribe the document.

Similarly, the mortgage, in full, must be recorded in every county in which the Northern Central has property.

JAPAN DECIDES TO TEACH ARMS TRADE

Tokio.—Military instruction in middle schools, higher schools and universities in Japan, along the lines of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps in American colleges, will be instituted shortly, according to plans of the War Office.

Officers of the regular army on active service will be attached to each middle school and higher school in the country. Since the army is planning a reorganization that will decrease its units by four divisions, about 2,000 officers will be released from duty with troops for this service.

Military drill is already part of the curriculum of Japanese schools, from grammar grades up, but theoretical instruction is not given, and in the higher grades the training is not compulsory. The new system would make the training compulsory for three hours a week.

Alaskan Rivers Found Rich With Unknown H-Power

Juneau, Alaska.—Fifty-five individual streams in southeastern Alaska show an aggregate of 25,520 primary and 464,810 average horsepower in undeveloped sites, according to a report made to the federal power commission by Joseph Cummings Dort, hydro-electric engineer of the Forest Service, who made a survey of southeastern Alaska in 1921 and 1922. The sites examined were classified as to district, location, average static head, average stream flow, primary and average horsepower, total concentrated at plant site, total cost of development and average horsepower cost.

SHIFTING SANDS THREATEN TOWN

Los Angeles.—Kelso, a community of about 500 persons situated on the Mojave desert, northeast of here, is threatened with destruction by the shifting sands of the desert.

Three years ago a huge pile of sand, approximately half a mile square, was noticed drifting near Kelso. Constant winds, blowing across the town and into the hot pit of Death Valley, a few miles away, were slowly moving the sand towards Kelso. The winds still blow, and it is believed that at the rate the dune is moving it will cover Kelso with 50 feet of sand within the next five years unless the preparations being made to ward off the menace are successful.

Afflicted Couple Seeks Leprosy Cure

Manila.—The marriage of two lepers was celebrated recently at a nuptial mass at San Lazaro, the contagious hospital in Manila, after which the couple were sent to Culion Island, where some 5,500 lepers are confined and where they hope to be cured of the disease.

The romance started in San Lazaro and the courtship was carried on chiefly by mail, the superintendent of the hospital believing this the most dignified manner for the young native lovers to exchange messages.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was given the couple by their friends in the hospital and a few hours later they departed for the leper colony.

EMMITSBURG MAN INJURED IN FALL

George D. Florence, of Emmitsburg, is recovering from serious injuries, suffered when he fell 25 feet while working at Gingle's stone quarry, Zora, last Thursday. His injuries consist of a fractured left wrist, badly bruised hip and a possible fracture of the left ankle bone.

After the accident, Mr. Florence was removed to his home in Emmitsburg, where he is receiving treatment.

SEA HAWK

"Thou dost me wrong," she protested. "I am thy friend. I would that—"

She broke off suddenly to listen. The stillness of the night was broken by cries from the direction of the Bab-el-Qub. She ran swiftly to the parapet whence the gate was to be seen and leaned far out. "Look, look!" she cried, and there was a tremor of fear in her voice. "It is he—Asad-el-Din."

Sakr-el-Bahr crossed to her side and in a glare of torches saw a body of men coming forth from the black archway of the gate.

"It seems as if, departing from thy custom, thou hast spoken truth, O Feuzileh."

She faced him, and he suspected the venomous glance darted at him through her veil. Yet her voice was cold.

"In a moment thou'lt have no single doubt of it. But what of me? He must not find me here. He would kill me, I think."

"I am sure he would," Sakr-el-Bahr agreed. "Yet muffled thus, who should recognize thee? Away, then, ere he comes. Didn't thou come alone?"

"Should I trust any one with the knowledge that I had visited thee?" she asked.

She moved quickly to the door, to pause again on the threshold.

"Thou'lt not relinquish her? Thou'lt not—"

"Be at ease," she answered her on so resolved a note that she departed satisfied.

CHAPTER XXI

IN THE SIGHT OF ALLAH Sakr-el-Bahr stood lost in thought after she had gone. Again he weighed her every word and considered precisely how he should meet Asad, and how refuse him, if the Basha's were indeed such an errand as Feuzileh had heralded.

Thus in silence he remained waiting for Ali or another to summon him to the presence of the Basha. Instead, however, when Ali entered it was actually to announce Asad-el-Din, who followed immediately upon his heels, having insisted in his impatience upon being conducted straight to the presence of Sakr-el-Bahr.

"The peace of the Prophet upon thee, my son," was the Basha's greeting.

"And upon thee, my lord," Sakr-el-Bahr saluted. "My house is honored."

With a gesture he dismissed Ali. "I come to thee a suppliant," said Asad, advancing.

"A suppliant, thou? No need, my lord. I have no will that is not the echo of thine own."

The Basha's questioning eyes went beyond him and glowed as they rested upon Rosamund.

"I come in haste," he said, "like any callow lover, guided by my very instinct to the presence of her I seek—this Frankish pearl, this perfumed captive of thy latest raid. I was away from the Kasbah when that pig Tsamanni returned thither from the sea; but when at last I learned that he had failed to purchase her as I commanded I could have wept for very grief. I feared at first that some merchant from the sea might have bought her and departed; but when I heard—blessed be Allah—that thou wert the buyer I was comforted again. For thou'lt yield her up to me, my son."

He spoke with such confidence that Oliver had a difficulty in choosing the words that were to disillusion him. Therefore he stood in hesitancy a moment.

"I will make good thy loss," Asad ran on. "Thou shalt have the sixteen hundred philips paid and another five hundred to console thee. Say that will content thee; for I boil with impatience."

Sakr-el-Bahr smiled grimly.

"It is an impatience well known to me, my lord, where she is concerned," he answered slowly. "I boiled with it myself for five interminable years. To make an end of it I went a distant perilous voyage to England in a captured Frankish vessel. Thou didst not know, O Asad, else thou wouldst—"

"Bah!" broke in the Basha. "Thou'rt a huckster born. There is none like thee, Sakr-el-Bahr, in any game of wits. Well, well, name thine own price, strike thine own profit out of my impatience and let us have done."

"My lord," he said quietly, "it is not the profit that is in question. She is not for sale."

Asad blinked at him, speechless, and slowly a faint color crept into his sallow cheeks.

"Not—not for sale?" he echoed, faltering in his amazement.

"Not if thou offered me thy Bashaik as the price of her," was his solemn answer.

"Ask anything else that is mine," he continued, "and gladly will I lay it at thy feet in earnest of my loyalty and love for thee."

"But I want nothing else," Asad's tone was impatient, petulant almost. "I want this slave."

"Then," replied Oliver, "I cast myself upon thy mercy and beseech thee to turn thine eyes elsewhere."

Asad scowled upon him. "Dost thou deny me?" he demanded, throwing back his head.

"Alas!" said Sakr-el-Bahr.

There fell a pause. Darker and darker grew the countenance of Asad, fiercer glowed the eyes he bent upon his lieutenant.

"I see," he said at last, with a calm so oddly at variance with his looks as to be sinister. "I see. It seems that there is more truth in Feuzileh than I suspected. So!"

He considered the corsair a moment with his sunken smoldering eyes.

Then he addressed him in a tone that vibrated with his suppressed anger.

"Behold thee, Sakr-el-Bahr, of what thou art, of what I have made thee. Behold thee of all the bounty these lands have lavished on thee. Thou art my own lieutenant, and mayest one day be more. In Algiers there is none above thee save myself. Art, then, so thankful as to deny me the first thing I ask of thee? Truly, is it written 'Ungrateful is Man.'"

"Dost thou know," began Sakr-el-Bahr, "all that is involved for me in this—"

"I neither know nor care," Asad cut in. "Whatever it may be it should be as naught when set against my will."

Then he discarded anger for cajolery. He set a hand upon Sakr-el-Bahr's stalwart shoulder.

"Come, my son. I will deal generously with thee out of my love, and I will pay thy refusal from my mind."

"Be generous, my lord, to the point of forgetting that ever thou didst ask me for her."

"Dost still refuse?" The voice, honeyed an instant ago, rang harsh again. "Take care how far thou strain my patience. Even as I have raised thee from the dirt, so at a word can I cast thee down again. Even as I broke the shackles that chained thee to the rower's bench, so can I rivet them on thee anew."

"All this canst thou do," Sakr-el-Bahr agreed. "And since, knowing it, I still hold to what is doubly mine—by right of capture and of purchase—thou mayest conceive how mighty are my reasons. Be merciful then, Asad—"

"Must I take her by force in spite of thee?" roared the Basha.

Sakr-el-Bahr stiffened. He threw back his head and looked the Basha squarely in the eyes.

"Whilst I live not even that mayest thou do," he answered.

"Disloyal, mutinous dog! Wilt thou resist me?"

"It is my prayer that thou'lt not be so ungenerous and unjust as to compel thy servant to a course so hateful."

Asad sneered.

"Is that thy last word?" he demanded.

"Save only that in all things else I am thy slave, O Asad."

A moment the Basha stood regarding him, his glance baleful. Then deliberately, as one who has taken his resolve, he strode to the door. On the threshold he paused and turned again.

"Wait!" he said, and on that threatening word departed.

Sakr-el-Bahr remained a moment where he had stood during the interview, then with a shrug he turned. He met Rosamund's eyes fixed intently upon him, and invested with a look he could not read. He found himself unable to meet it, and he turned away. It was treacherous that in such a moment the earlier stab of remorse should be repeated. He had overreached himself indeed. Despair settled down upon him, a full consciousness of the horrible thing he had done, which seemed now so irrevocable. In his silent anguish he almost conceived that he had mistaken his feelings for Rosamund; that far from hating her as he had supposed, his love for her had not yet been slain, else surely he should not be tortured now by the thought of her becoming Asad's prey. If he hated her, indeed, as he had supposed, he would have surrendered her and gloated.

MUHLENBERG '11 BEATS BULLETS

Local Collegians Lose to Strong Allentown Outfit 25 to 0; Crippled Outfit, Handicap.

Muhlenberg triumphed over the Gettysburg College Bullets Saturday at Allentown 25 to 0. The score does not by any degree present a fair comparison of the strength of both squads. Disastrous breaks at critical moments are responsible in a large measure for the Bullets' defeat. This coupled with the loss of several first string men put the Collegians at a disadvantage that they were unable to overcome.

Muhlenberg was looked upon as a strong team and they were not underestimated by the local coaching staff. The best that Gettysburg had to offer minus their hospital list of regulars was presented on Saturday and Muhlenberg copped the contest.

To Davy Jones, guard on the Bullets' squad, goes the bulk of the credit for Gettysburg's heroic stand. Jones was a tower of strength in the line, tore holes in the opposition attack and in general proved himself a fighter of old. He won the plaudits of the Muhlenberg fans for his brilliant playing. He was in every play and presented a bulwark of defense against the line-plunging of the Muhlenberg outfit.

Two costly fumbles proved disastrous for the local eleven and Muhlenberg made the most of their advantages, in weight and experience.

Costly injuries

Gettysburg has not fully recovered from the injuries received in the Lehigh and Penn State games. The past two weeks has been devoted in the main part of building up a new eleven around the remaining regulars and the coaching staff has had an unenviable task in perfecting the same fighting machine that faced Juniata.

The Bullets emerged from the Juniata game unmarred. Then came Lehigh and several of the first string men suffered injuries that has kept them from the field during the past two weeks. The Penn State contest, also away from home, was also a costly battle from a standpoint of injuries and two more regulars were forced out.

With his squad suffering such heavy penalties, Coach Wood has been confronted with the task of rebuilding his eleven. This he has found anything but easy and long before the Muhlenberg contest Coach Wood was reconciled to the fact that he would enter the Allentown contest greatly handicapped.

Mt. St. Mary's Next

However, the Orange and Blue aggregation that defended the local colors Saturday fought gamely throughout the game. At times they swept their heavier opponents off their feet and started a dash for the goal line, only to be halted in the danger zone, when Muhlenberg braced for a final stand.

The entire week will be consumed in nursing his injured regulars and grooming his second string aggregation to bear the brunt of the Mt. St. Mary's attack next Saturday on Nixon Field, the second game of the season to be played at home.

The line-up:

BEAVERS UNDO MAN'S WORK

Vancouver, Wash.—A colony of beavers near here recently has been staging a contest with the state highway department. To protect the North Bank Highway a small lake was drained, but the beavers immediately constructed a dam that resulted in the overflow of the road. The dam was torn down, and in a single night the beavers built a new one. This tilt went on for a week. Finally wire was used to keep the beavers away from the outlet.

Formerly when plays were brought up-town they were as a repeat performance but "Going Some" has been casted with local players with the express purpose of opening the season in Gettysburg on Gettysburgians' "home grounds." It is evident that this fact is being appreciated by local theatre-goers.

Expect Alumni

Alumni of the college visiting the school on Alumni Day, Saturday, the twenty-fifth of October, will be given the opportunity of attending a dress rehearsal of the play. In all probability some of the students will attend this rehearsal presentation. However, it would be impossible for the Dramatic Club to make this the major performance as an Interfraternity Migratory dance is planned by all the fraternities and is scheduled to begin at 9 o'clock. Dr. A. R. Arms, the club director, stressed the fact that the Saturday performance was merely being staged out of courtesy to the visiting alumni of the college.

"The Hottentot" and "Cappy Ricks" seem to have been the most popular and best rendered plays of the Owl and Nightingale Society. It is rumored that the coming play "Go-

JUST FOLKS

By Edgar A. Guest

THE HELP LESS MAN

"Last night I dreamed I'd died," said she,
"Passed from this world and trouble-free;
And getting up to Heaven's gate,
I was received in royal state.
'Come in and rest,' St. Peter said,
'Poor, weary wife, be comforted,
Come in and put your cares away.'
'No, no,' said I, 'I must not stay.'"

"What troubles you?" he asked and smiled,
'At last you've come to Heaven, child!'

'I know,' I said, 'and I am proud,
To think in here I'd be allowed,
But back to earth please let me go,
My helpless husband needs me so;
Since first I took his wedding ring

He hasn't found a single thing.
'I have to find his shoes and spats,
His overcoats and tie and hats;
At morn I've passed him out his hose.
Where they are kept he never knows,
And were they right beneath his nose
He'd never see them. When he goes
Upon a little business trip
I must be there to pack his grip.
'Poor man, he'll quickly come to grief

He cannot find his handkerchief.
In vain about the house he'll look
For his pajamas on the hook;
For thirty years I now assert
I've put the buttons in his shirt.
Without me now, I'm asking you
Whatever will my husband do?'"

The excitement over the robbery of the local bank has about subsided. But while it lasted it was intense and there are still a few people dubious about their deposits. To those we say there is no danger, as the bank carries burglar insurance and besides that losses such as this could have no effect on the stability of the institution. Nearly all the money having been recovered, it will be returned to the bank.

Argentine Planters Know How to Grow Cheap Cotton

Buenos Aires.—The cost of producing cotton in Argentina is cheaper than in the United States, according to a report on the new cotton growing industry in Argentina by Ernest L. Tutt, the American cotton expert attached to the Argentine ministry of Agriculture. The cost for each pound last year in the United States was 25 cents, compared with about 18 cents in Argentina. The marketing expenses are higher in Argentina but everything considered Mr. Tutt believes that cotton growing to the individual ought to be more profitable here than in the United States.

Discoveries Show Old Romans Were Passably Good Dentists

Richborough, Eng.—Archaeologists excavating the mighty foundations of Richborough Castle, the Fort Rutupis of the Romans, in an effort to uncover evidence of the duration of the sojourn of the Romans in Britain, have discovered a delicately fashioned dentist's probe, exactly like that used by present day dental operators. A British Museum expert who is helping with the excavations declared the old Romans were quite up-to-date in their methods of dentistry, and that evidence had been found that they used gold filling.

Passionate expressions and vehement assertions are no arguments—unless it be of the weakness of the cause that is defended by them or of the man that defends it.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn ray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.—adv.

HAVE KIDNEYS
EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers.

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—adv.

CONVERT PALACE INTO NEW HOTEL

Rumor Dolma Bagtche, Palace of Ex-Sultan Mohammed V, May Become a Hotel.

Constantinople.—Rumors that Dolma Bagtche, the palace of the ex-Sultan Mohammed V, is to be sold to a company which will convert the imperial residence and extensive grounds into a hotel and amusement park have stirred up much excitement in the old Turkish capital. Will the Seraglio go next? is the question generally asked. Is the whole Bosphorus to be converted into a "Midway Plaisance" and robbed of its historic charm? Will the Angora government sacrifice the ancient landmarks of the Turkish empire in an effort to raise money to keep the Nationalist government going?

Turks and foreigners alike are asking these questions as they survey the panorama of mosques and palaces along the Golden Horn and Bosphorus which lend charm to this ancient city over which Europe and Asia have been fighting for many centuries.

Erected in 1853 Dolma Bagtche was erected in 1853. It stands near the shore of the Bosphorus. On the hills behind it are magnificent grounds, and among the forest trees are many smaller residences as well as the Yildiz Kiosk, where recent sultans went on Fridays for their weekly prayers.

Mohammed V, the sultan who was forced to abdicate by the Mustapha Kemal government, lived of recent years in one of the houses back from the waterfront. He preferred to be away from the sight of the battle-ships of many nations which lay along the Bosphorus. It was at Yildiz Kiosk that foreigners have gathered for many years to watch the sultans make their imperial march from the palace grounds every Friday, to bow with more humble Mohammedans in reverence, with their faces toward Mecca.

Offer $1,500,000.
There are rumors that $1,500,000 has been offered for the palace and its extensive grounds, and that promoters intend to convert it into a hotel which will be more magnificent than any in the east and have a theatre, amusement park and gigantic cafe in connection with it. The palace has a magnificent frontage on the Bosphorus and an extensive quay, which will make it possible to handle tourist traffic direct from incoming steamers to the hotel.
